

Erotic

Fripons ★ ★ New ★ ★ Collective

First published by Les Humanoïdes Associés in the 90s, the Fripon books are a collection of naughty short stories by the greatest authors, such as Bilal, Druillet or Gibrat. Beltran drew the covers, in a convincing 1950s style, in order to give these books the wonderful look they deserve.

L'Âne d'or Milo Manara

A faithful adaptation of "The Golden Ass" by Apuleius, "La Métamorphose de Lucius" is a rather naughty novel from the Roman antiquity. Manara is of course perfectly at ease, with a surprising style that mixes his inimitable drawings with the outdated iconography of this old era. Not to be read by everybody. Well, at least, not yet.

Gulliveriana Milo Manara

Naughty Gulliveriana opens the doors to fantastic worlds inhabited by monarchist dwarves, playful giants, sex-crazed stallions, and frustrated nymphomaniacs. These adventures have been largely inspired by "Gulliver's Travels," the book that has been read by seemingly good children for decades. So who better than the impertinent and sulfurous Manara to reinvent this philosophical tale for adults? Only in a slightly more voluptuous way!
